To whom it may concern:

I was introduced to Gerold Brothers builders about 16 years ago. Jim's company were the bulders and I was the architect of a large restoration of a manor house in Old Brookville. This was my first experience with Gerold Brothers Builders and I quickly understood the depth of experlence his company had early in the project. The restoration was a very difficult project with many traditional details, and material selections that had to match the existing architecture. Had we been required to purchase many of the detailed materials from manufacturers such as the entrance doorways, or odd size french doors, the cost of the construction would have been exorbitant. Gerold Brothers built these items and many more at a fraction of the cost and within the constrictive term of the project. Throughout the project Jim and his crews paid attention to details and satisfied the client with a beautiful project.

Since that project, I have worked with Gerold Brothers on many other ongoing residential projects. The same attention to detail; to work as a team member; the same concern to satisfy the client; and the goal to produce the best possible residence is still the philosophy and work ethic of Gerold Brothers.

I intend to recommend and work with Jim Gerold and Gerold Brothers in the future.

Sincerely,
